Pre-test assessment (entry quiz)

Country:

City:

Dates of the Training Course:

Participant's Sex:    Male    Female

1. Within the project cycle, the purpose of the “Conceptualization” phase is to:

- Programme in what order the activities of a given project are implemented, taking into account special risks
- Acquire a thorough understanding of the situation by conducting a problem analysis and a solutions analysis
- Identify the context-specific factors that could affect the outcome of the project
- Define the position of an association on Migration and Development issues
- None of the above

2. The project beneficiaries only need to be identified once the project implementation starts

- Yes, that avoids wasting time taking part in long discussions during the project design phase
- No, they should be consulted at the early stages of a project to ensure that the project addresses real needs, while contributing to ownership and sustainability
- Yes, they can also be identified during the implementation phase, and that would not make any difference
- It depends on the beneficiaries and the target area

3. The engagement project stakeholders stakeholders in the initial phase is crucial to the success of the project implementation. Why?

- It builds confidence and trust
- It ensures sustainability once the project is over
- It ensures that the needs of the beneficiaries are met
- All of the above

4. Please specify if each statement below is an objective, outcome, output or activity.

a) Organizing three public forums on responsible tourism

f) Contributing to the improvement of access to justice for all citizens in Country X.

Objective
Outcome
Output

5. The development of vertical logic of the logical framework is...

A bottom-up process (from activities, outputs, outcomes to objectives)

A top-down process (from objectives, outcomes, outputs to activities)

6. Identifying a good partner is:

Not really important, because, in the end, only one association can take the lead and assume responsibility for the successful implementation of the project

Not easy, because partners should share the same vision and have complementary expertise and skills

Very important, and therefore you should identify a good partner even before identifying a project idea

Crucial when it comes to receiving funding and preparing good reports

7. When initially discussing with your (potential) partners, you should:

Clarify tasks and responsibilities

Analyse the added value of working together

Outline an initial communication strategy with them

All of the above

8. What are the main challenges faced by international partnerships when it comes to project implementation?

Distance, project objectives and working hours

Organizational and cultural differences; relationships with external stakeholders

Distance, and organizational and cultural differences between the different partners involved

9. When drafting your project budget, bear in mind to include the following lines:

Staff costs

Office costs

Operating costs

All of the above

10. The best tool for designing and monitoring a project budget is:

- Word
- Excel
- Power Point

11. What do you need to monitor a project?

- The logical framework (results matrix/results framework)
- The operational work plan
- The budget schedule
- All of the above

12. In what way does evaluation differ from monitoring?

- Evaluation is more important than monitoring in the long term, because it assesses the exact impact of your initiative and how replicable it is
- Monitoring gathers information about the progress of scheduled activities, while evaluation gathers information about effectiveness in order to influence future initiatives
- Monitoring is more time-consuming and costly, while evaluation is more time-efficient since it is carried out regularly throughout the project cycle

13. What are the main channels and tools for communicating project activities?

- Press releases
- Social networks (e.g. Facebook, Instagram, Twitter)
- Web site, blog, newsletter
- None of the above

14. You can use storytelling during project implementation in order to:

- Present project results to the donor, while giving voice to people
- Communicate project activities to the local community
- Attract potential beneficiaries
- None of the above

2.3. TRAINING IMPLEMENTATION

SESSION 0 / TRAINING INTRODUCTION

Methods and tools for the creation of work groups

You can use different methods to create groups. Some examples:

NEIGHBOURING GROUPS

The facilitator indicates that participants will work in groups of three. With a clear gesture, the facilitator indicates each person in turn and assigns them respectively to group “One, two, three... one, two, three, etc.”

VOLUNTEER GROUPS

Participants form groups on their own, based on common interests, affinity, interdisciplinarity, etc. The facilitator can set limits (for example: no more than four people per group) or make suggestions on the criteria for group formation (for example: people who did not know each other before the course).

RANDOM GROUPS

You can bring sweets of different flavours/colours and ask participants to pick one at random. Participants who picked the same flavour/colour go in the same group. Prepare in advance and make sure you count the total number of participants; then choose in how many groups you want to divide them, and bring the same number of sweets for each flavour/colour to make sure all groups are formed.

SESSION 1 / DEVELOPING A PROJECT

Case study

PROMOTING GENDER EQUALITY IN COUNTRY X

Country X is plagued by a high rate of gender-based violence (SGBV), especially in the countryside and in remote villages. Policies for the promotion of gender equality and SGBV laws are poorly structured and fragmented in Country X, with implementation functions being dispersed across several government ministries.

Although existing laws allow police or other government bodies (e.g. social services) to take action in case of SGBV incidents, they rarely do so. In fact, in the local culture, fathers, elder brothers and husbands are considered to be the heads of the household, and many cases of domestic violence/ SGBV are not even perceived as abuse. At the same time, many cases of violence are not reported to the police due to a general lack of awareness of women's rights and of laws addressing such problems, especially among illiterates.

Moreover, access to justice and support mechanisms is hard to be ensured in remote villages, thus hindering many women from formally (or informally) reporting to the police and receiving help. Police officers and paralegals in remote areas do not have the appropriate skills to deal with such cases, nor do they take the right approach when dealing with SGBV victims, as domestic violence is inherent in their culture.

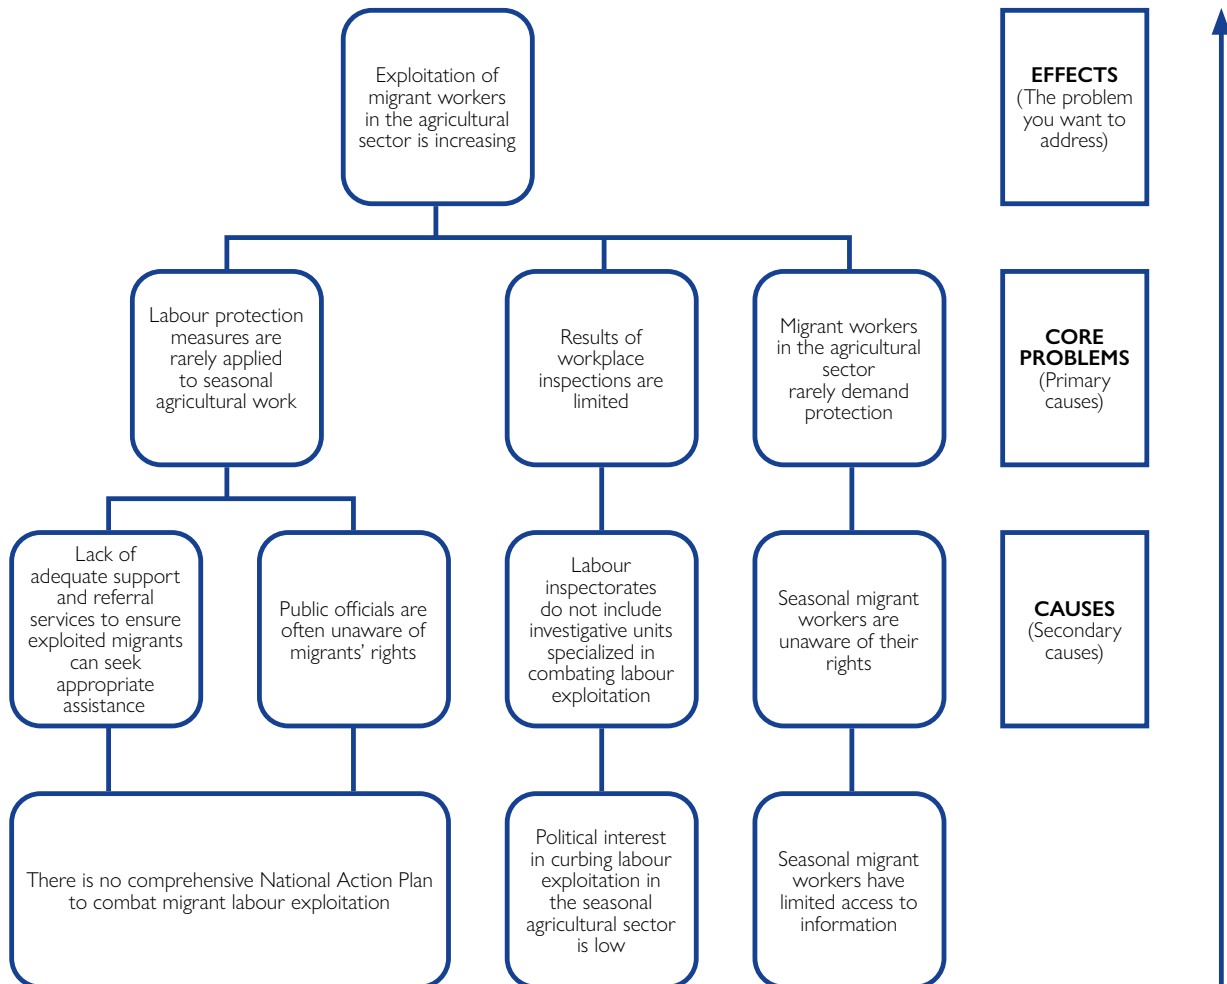

The distance women need to go to reach legal or law enforcement facilities, or civil society organizations, also discourages them from taking action, as public transportation fees should be covered by their husbands and/or they would have to walk a very long way and thus be away from home a long time, while they are expected to take care of the household and do domestic chores.

Civil society organizations are actively involved in country X. However, almost all associations working for the promotion of women's rights and combating SGBV have been created only recently, and they do not receive appropriate support from the government.

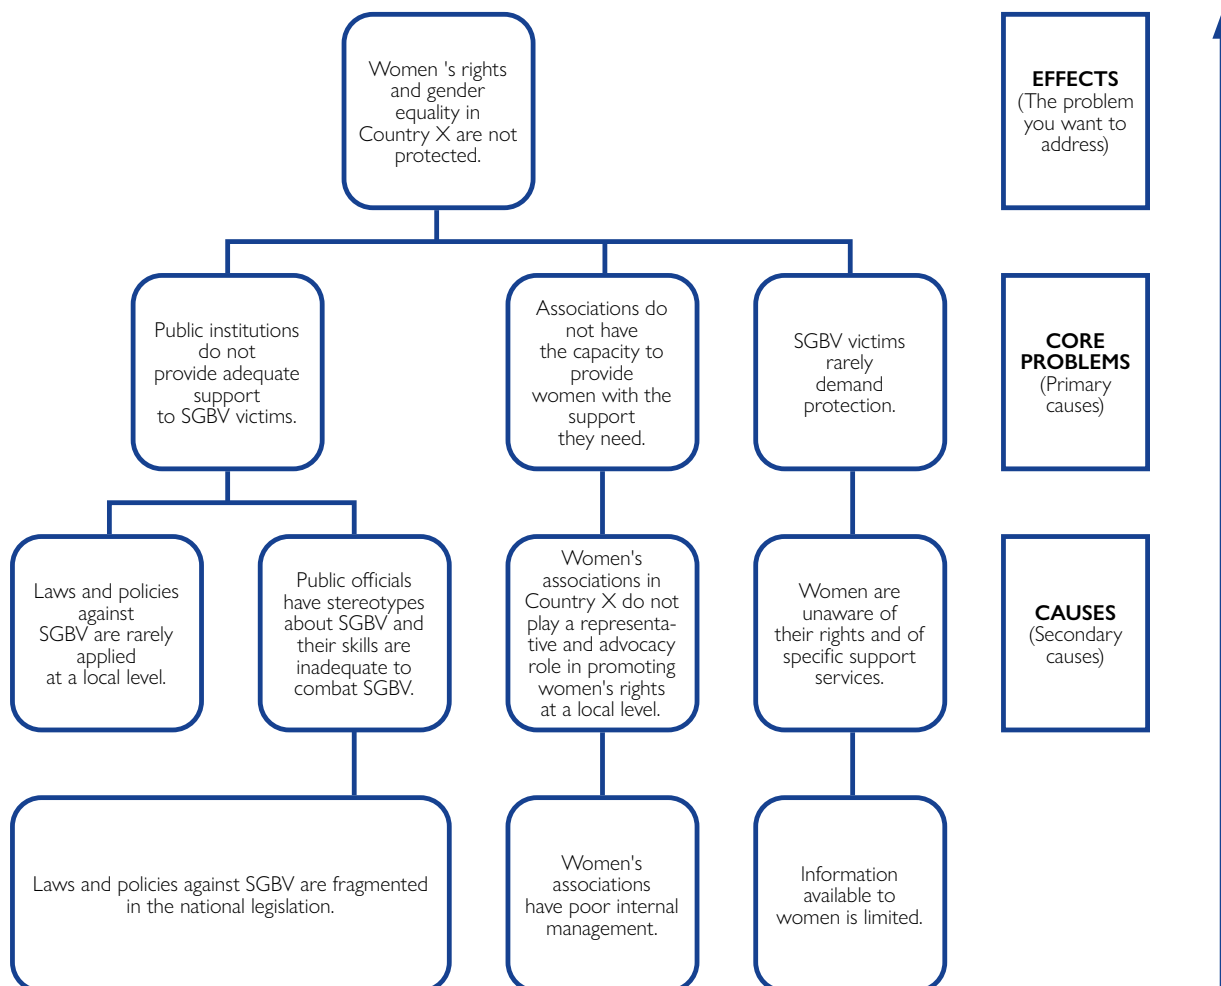

Although they have good ideas and legal skills, and they work with legal professionals and experienced social workers, they do not have any sound internal strategy management or the communication skills necessary to play an influential role when dealing with government institutions and SGBV victims.

Logical Framework Tool*

RESULTS	INDICATORS	BASELINE/ TARGET	SOURCES OF VERIFICATION	ASSUMPTIONS
Objective The most significant, realistic objective that the project can help to achieve.	Quantitative or qualitative factor or variable for measuring achievement or reflecting expected changes.	Baseline measurement establishes the value of the indicator at the beginning of the project planning.  Target describes the expected value of the indicator upon completion of the activity.	Quantitative or qualitative sources from which the status of each of the indicators can be ascertained. For each indicator you can specify one or more verification sources.
Outcomes The intended changes in institutional performance, in individual or group behaviour or attitudes, or in the political, economic, or social position of the beneficiaries.				Assumptions necessary for the outputs to deliver the outcomes.
Outputs The intended changes in the skills or abilities of the beneficiaries, or in the availability of new products or services as a result of project activities.
Activities The coordination, technical assistance, training, production, delivery, transportation, and other tasks that are organized and executed within the project.

* Adapted from IOM Project Handbook, 2012.

Logical Framework Example

RESULTS	INDICATORS	BASELINE/TARGET	SOURCES OF VERIFICATION	ASSUMPTIONS
Objective  The project aims to contribute to the promotion of women's rights and gender equality in Country X, particularly to the promotion of access to services for women who survived gender-based violence (SGBV).	1. Number of women seeking support from women's associations, by age.  2. Number of women who received support through services for SGBV survivors and are satisfied with the support, by age.	Baseline: 1. 0 Target: 1. 20 women supported, broken down by age.  Baseline: 1. 0 Target: 1. 20 women satisfied with the support they received, broken down by age.	1. National statistics.  2. Women associations' reports and records.  3. Survey among the women benefiting from the SGBV support services.
Outcome 1  Women's associations in Country X have improved their capacity to deal with government institutions and have strengthened their representative and advocacy role in promoting women's rights at a local level.	3. Percentage of women's associations that promote and protect women's rights.	Baseline: 1. 0.  Target: 1. 50% increase	1. National statistics.  2. Women associations' reports and records.	Continued willingness of women's associations to deal with women in their communities in a constructive manner.
Output 1.1  The three main women's associations in Country X have been empowered to provide women with training in women's rights and in the measures that can be taken to ensure that they are upheld.	1. Number of representatives of women's associations that completed the training-of-trainers workshops.  2. Percentage of trained women who feel they are more effective when providing other women with guidance.  3. Percentage of trained women who scored 70 per cent or higher in a post-workshop test.  4. Percentage of trained women who facilitated training workshops for other women.	Baseline: 1. 0. Target: 1. 30 women.  Baseline: 2. n.a. Target: 2. 80% of participants.  Baseline: 3. n.a. Target: 3. 80% of participants.  Baseline: 4. n.a. Target: 4. 80% of participants.  Baseline: n.a. Target: 4. 70% of initiatives identified	1. Training course attendance sheets.  2. Survey among the associations benefiting from the project.  3. Post-workshop evaluation test.  4. Training workshop material (present sheets, agendas, etc.).  5. Women associations' reports and records.	Continued intention of the representatives of women's associations who have been trained to provide training for other women in their communities.  Continued willingness of women in the community to deal with women's associations that have been trained.
Activities  1.1 Identify the main women's associations to involve in the project. 1.2 Organize bilateral meetings with associations to collect specific needs and consult them on feasibility, methodology and content for training-of-trainers workshops. 1.3 Organize training-of-trainers workshops for representatives of women's associations. 1.4 Write a ToT guide and give it to relevant associations. 1.5 Organize a strategic planning workshop with involved association to develop an advocacy and communication action plan. 1.6 Organize social theatre sessions to raise awareness of SGBV and inform the community about the support provided by the associations. 1.7 Provide technical support to the trained associations for 3 months after the workshop.				Women's associations continue to cooperate with the lead association and agree to participate in training-of-trainers workshops.  Availability of venues and basic material resources to allow associations to provide training in their communities.

Guide to the Development of SMART Indicators

HOW TO SELECT SMART INDICATORS

Specific: Does the indicator embody the essence of the intended result?

Measurable: Are changes objectively verifiable? Does the indicator measure the results in a reliable and clear manner?

Achievable: Does the indicator require no more than a reasonable amount of time, effort, and money to gather and analyse the necessary data? Are targets realistic?

Relevant: Is the indicator plausibly associated with the result?

Time-bound: Is it clear from the result statement that the result will be achieved within the time frame available for project implementation?

- 2 Use one post-it for each stakeholder (previously identified) and assign a kind of responsibility to each specific stakeholder; then attach the post-it to the RACI matrix.
  - a. R/Responsible: This is the doer of the work. Although this stakeholder may delegate or seek support from others, ultimately it is its responsibility to ensure the work is done.
  - b. A/Accountable: This stakeholder is accountable for the work carried out by the responsible stakeholder; and signs off the work. The golden rule of RACI is that only one stakeholder/person can be accountable for each task.
  - c. C/Consulted: These contributors provide input, opinions, and advice through two-way communication.

SESSION 5 / COMMUNICATING THE PROJECT

Ten rules for effective storytelling

1. Focus on informing: though in a creative and original form, your main goal is to provide information about something that you know very well and that you wish to share with other people.
2. Focus on people: protagonists tell about themselves in person, nobody does it on their behalf. If the context allows it, write the message with them, or ask them to write it in person. You can choose to give voice to:
  - Beneficiaries, the people who directly or indirectly reap the benefits of your project. What has happened in their lives since they got acquainted with you? What was there before and what is there now? What resources have they deployed to help change?
  - Operators and volunteers, the people who help to create change in the lives of the beneficiaries. Who are they? What skills and expertise have they invested in? What passion or goal drives them?
  - Donors, the people who care about the stories of the beneficiaries and who have chosen to support your projects. Who are they and why do they believe in you?
3. Fight prejudices and stereotypes: show that reality has many facets, give prominence to different voices and perspectives.
4. Share concrete achievements: switch the focus of the message from the problem to the solution. Show how the money provided by the donors has been spent, what people are doing, how their lives are actually changing.
5. Give prominence to emotions and feelings: protagonists are real people, who suffer and rejoice like all of us. Readers identify with their stories and recognize parts of their own lives, like challenges, difficulties and successes.
6. Describe every situation with honesty and truthfulness: the audience takes time to read your stories; in exchange, present them with fragments of reality, and show that they can trust you.
7. Engage the reader: make them feel part of the lives of your protagonists, possibly telling their stories as if they were part of a serial; entertain, intrigue and amuse them.
8. Give the stories a beginning and an ending: develop the stories through actions and plot changes that follow a chronological order.
9. Combine text, videos and photos: if you can, enhance your written messages with photos and original videos. On the web, images are the most appreciated and shared content!
10. Keep it simple: use an easy and familiar style (and be careful to avoid orthographic and grammar errors!).

Communication Plan Template*

TYPE OF COMMUNICATION	RESPONSIBLE PERSON	TARGET AUDIENCE	DELIVERY ACTIONS	KEY MESSAGES	TIMELINE
					M1	M2	M3

Instructions on how to fill in the communication plan template:

Type of communication: Include a list of platforms that will be used for communication and visibility during the project (e.g. public events, press notes, social media, websites, publications, communication materials, information campaigns and visibility materials). Create a new row for each type of platform that will be used during project implementation.

Persons responsible: Specify the individuals responsible for the action. Use this section to specify the people who are best suited for delivering the message with the best level of acceptance by the target audience.

Target audience: Specify the audience that the message is targeting. Messages should focus on “what’s in for me” for this target audience. Identify the recipient of the message before drafting a targeted message. Consider the type of audience depending on the purpose of the communication: external or internal; targeted groups or everyone.

Delivery actions: Specify what actions must be taken to use this communication or visibility platform. This section defines how the message is delivered. This needs to take into account the type of communication, the timing of the delivery, and the person who delivers the message. This column also defines the resources required to deliver the message and the mechanisms to collect feedback and to follow up.

Key messages: Summarize the key messages that are to be delivered through this platform. Key messages convey the purpose of the communication, and therefore the type of audience who receives the message needs to be considered.

Timeline: Specify the planned schedule for the particular communication. Note that depending on the scale and duration of the project, the units used for the timeline may vary accordingly (quarterly, monthly, weekly).

SESSION 6 / CLOSURE ACTIVITIES AND TRAINING EVALUATION

Post-assessment test*Pre-test assessment (entry quiz)*Country:*City:*Dates of the Training Course:*Participant's Sex:    Male    Female

1. Within the project cycle, the purpose of the “Conceptualization” phase is to:

Programme in what order the activities of a given project are implemented, taking into account special risks
 Acquire a thorough understanding of the situation by conducting a problem analysis and a solutions analysis
 Identify the context-specific factors that could affect the outcome of the project
 Define the position of an association on Migration and Development issues
 None of the above

2. The project beneficiaries only need to be identified once the project implementation starts

Yes, that avoids wasting time taking part in long discussions during the project design phase
 No, they should be consulted at the early stages of a project to ensure that the project addresses real needs, while contributing to ownership and sustainability
 Yes, they can also be identified during the implementation phase, and that would not make any difference
 It depends on the beneficiaries and the target area

3. The engagement project stakeholders stakeholders in the initial phase is crucial to the success of the project implementation. Why?

It builds confidence and trust
 It ensures sustainability once the project is over
 It ensures that the needs of the beneficiaries are met
 All of the above

4. Please specify if each statement below is an objective, outcome, output or activity.

5. The development of vertical logic of the logical framework is...

- A bottom-up process (from activities, outputs, outcomes to objectives)
- A top-down process (from objectives, outcomes, outputs to activities)

6. Identifying a good partner is:

- Not really important, because, in the end, only one association can take the lead and assume responsibility for the successful implementation of the project
- Not easy, because partners should share the same vision and have complementary expertise and skills
- Very important, and therefore you should identify a good partner even before identifying a project idea
- Crucial when it comes to receiving funding and preparing good reports

7. When initially discussing with your (potential) partners, you should:

- Clarify tasks and responsibilities
- Analyse the added value of working together
- Outline an initial communication strategy with them
- All of the above

8. What are the main challenges faced by international partnerships when it comes to project implementation?

- Distance, project objectives and working hours
- Organizational and cultural differences; relationships with external stakeholders
- Distance, and organizational and cultural differences between the different partners involved

9. When drafting your project budget, bear in mind to include the following lines:

11. What do you need to monitor a project?

- The logical framework (results matrix/results framework)
- The operational work plan
- The budget schedule
- All of the above

12. In what way does evaluation differ from monitoring?

- Evaluation is more important than monitoring in the long term, because it assesses the exact impact of your initiative and how replicable it is
- Monitoring gathers information about the progress of scheduled activities, while evaluation gathers information about effectiveness in order to influence future initiatives
- Monitoring is more time-consuming and costly, while evaluation is more time-efficient since it is carried out regularly throughout the project cycle

13. What are the main channels and tools for communicating project activities?

- Press releases
- Social networks (e.g. Facebook, Instagram, Twitter)
- Web site, blog, newsletter
- All of the above

14. You can use storytelling during project implementation in order to:

- present project results to the donor, while giving voice to people.
- communicate project activities to the local community.
- attract potential beneficiaries.
- All of the above

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

Call for proposal example

1. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND INFORMATION

[Introduction and background information about the institution organizing the training]

The Course supports socioeconomic and environmental development initiatives by Italian migrants' associations in their countries of reference and in Italy through specific training sessions addressing the design and implementation of sustainable development projects. Through multidisciplinary training modules that combine face-to-face lectures and exercise sessions, the Course provides theoretical and practical information on planning and managing co-development projects.

The A.MI.CO. Award, a monetary prize aimed at supporting the implementation of sustainable development projects involving both the countries of reference and Italy, has been established in order to capitalize on the skills acquired by the associations that attended the A.MI.CO. Training Course to reward the best projects and, at the same time, to support the role of the diaspora in co-development initiatives. The call for proposals mainly targets projects that enhance the potential of Italian associations with a migratory background as promoters of transnational initiatives, such as the creation of partnership networks and/or trans-nationals alliances, the circulation of skills, economic and/or cultural exchange, etc.

2. ELIGIBLE APPLICANTS

The call for proposals is open to all migrants' associations based in Italy and affiliated to a third country that participated in the A.MI.CO. Training Course in 2019 and obtained a certificate of attendance.

Therefore, any project proposals submitted by applicants other than those mentioned above are not eligible.

Any associations applying as lead associations can only submit one proposal and are not allowed to apply as partners in other submitted proposals.

Each applicant can only submit one proposal, even in the context of multiple partnerships/project proposals. Therefore, any project proposals submitted by partnerships that have one or more members in common are not eligible, even if they are submitted by a different applicant.
